Summary

I'm a new computer engineering graduate. I'm passionate about every detail about computers, as low-level details as OS mechanisms, data structure, network infrastructure, C and assembly code, going all the way to building highly scalable web APIs and web applications. Throughout my study, I've grasped good knowledge about building scalable and maintainable backend systems. Most importantly, working on multiple mid-sized projects alongside different colleagues and friends enabled me to experience participating in a team to make an eco-system that eventually serves it's customers.
